

Noorazwani Zainol is currently Head of Food and Nutraceutical Unit, Institute Bioproduct Development (IBD), UTM. She obtained her PhD in Biosciences at Nottingham University, UK. Her research expertise is in in-vitro analysis involving oil-in-water emulsion mimic gastrointestinal tract, phytochemical characterization, interface and colloid studies. Her research area are focusing on food and nutraceutical product development as well as herbs. She actively involved in HICOE grants, FRGS, GUP, PPRN and LPMN project and has been a project leader for HICOE and external grants with cumulative amounts of around 2.5 Million. Her work has been published in ISI-indexed, local and international book chapters and e-proceeding. Apart from that she also involved as Editor in an international e-proceeding. She formerly acted as a Quality Manager in IBD laboratory analysis which accredited from Malaysia Standard ISO/IEC 17025. She also represent IBD in R&D exhibition and won several awards in INATEX 2015, INATEX 2016, INATEX 2017, BIOMALAYSIA 2017 and Gold award in International Exhibition of Invention, Geneva 2003. Her contribution also not limited to the R&D activities, yet she also actively involved as a tutor and therapist in short courses which dealing with holistic approach with cumulative amounts of around 3.0 Million.